

DH PLATE LOADED SERIES

PRODUCT OVERVIEW

The DH005 is a professional plate-loaded strength machine designed for targeted development of the back muscles. With a modern aesthetic and reinforced construction, it is ideal for high-end personal training studios and commercial fitness facilities. The movement path of the arms is ergonomically engineered to align with the natural shoulder motion and muscle fiber direction of the back, ensuring a smooth, comfortable rowing experience with optimal muscle activation.

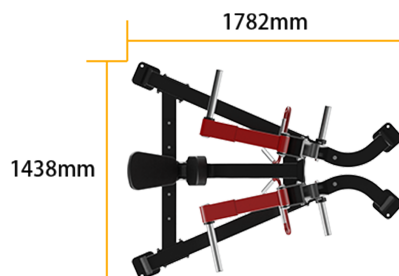

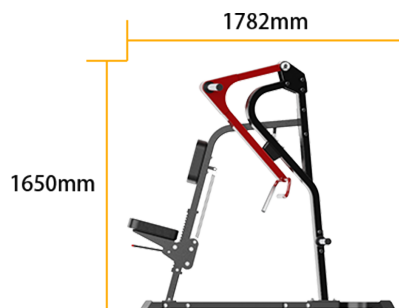

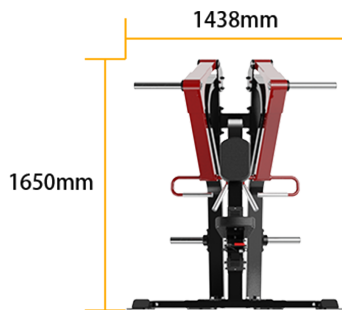

The multi-grip handle design offers a variety of grip widths and orientations—from wide to narrow, overhand to neutral—enabling users to target the lats, rhomboids, and trapezius with precision. This flexibility supports both back width and thickness development.

The wide, slip-resistant footplates feature an ergonomic angle that accommodates different ankle mobility levels, helping users maintain stable body positioning during heavy rows. The chest pad is strategically angled and distanced to ensure proper range of motion while allowing easy access to the handles. Paired with a seat equipped with infinite adjustment, users can quickly and accurately position themselves for optimal posture and movement alignment, enhancing both training effectiveness and safety.
